Double-breasted

For a more conservative business look that is assertive, but is less "arrogant" or has less bravado than the low cut three-piece, the double-breasted suit is an absolute must-have and screams "senior partner". It's a great option for building up the torso and is particularly flattering on taller men, but they can look a bit stuffy depending on the colour and fabric. To modernise, it's important to go for a tailored look and opt for lighter colours, which are instantly more youthful, but also consider a formal print, like a pinstripe, that you can juxtapose against another formal print, like a diagonal check in the form of a tie.

Two-piece

Ah, the trusty two-piece – the absolute must-have for every gentleman aspiring towards a functioning wardrobe and the first step in many towards acquiring a respectable collection of suits for all occasions. This is your most versatile look and a fundamental business essential. The best bet is to go for plain and simple colours that you'll wear often and can easily pair with other items in case you want to break the look down and mix and match.
